International Conference, University of Plymouth, UK 14-17 July 2010

Separateness and Kinship : Transatlantic Exchanges between New England and Britain 1600-1900

Keynote speakers:

Lawrence Buell, Powell M. Cabot Professor of American Literature, Harvard University

Susan Manning, Grierson Professor of English Literature, The Institute for Advanced Studies in the Humanities, University of Edinburgh

This three day conference will explore issues arising from the relationship between Britain and New England in the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, in the light of recent developments in the reading of transatlantic connections. In the run up to the 400th anniversary of the sailing of the Mayflower, and in the context of new critical perspectives on transatlantic studies, such as post colonial theory with its emphasis on the whole Atlantic rim, feminism, discussions of displacement and debates about national identity, what does it now mean in the early twenty-first century to revisit with an interdisciplinary perspective the cultural and ideological exchanges between Britain and New England 1600-1900? The conference will include contributions from literary scholars, art historians and specialists in the history of architecture and other material cultures.

The conference will be held at the University of Plymouth in the United Kingdom. Those wishing to reserve a place should register their interest by contacting vivien.minton@plymouth.ac.uk. Details of booking and payment information will appear on the conference website later this year.
